The metropolitan scale of resilience

28 Nov. 2017

How can a resilient metropolis be built? This session, jointly organized by Metropolis and Metropolitan Area of Barcelona, presents an analysis of this perspective, presented by the organisation 100 Resilient Cities, who Metropolis commissioned to draft Issue Paper 3 for the Metropolis Observatory. It will involve the attendance of metropolises from nearly every continent, who will present their plans for resilience. These plans no longer focus solely on preparing for natural disasters, but also feature issues such as social inclusion, security, housing and employment. These snapshots of the present allow us to imagine possible future scenarios for metropolitan citizens.

The event will be held in English and Spanish. Translation services will be available in both languages.
