Learning Station page

We had the feeling that the training page on our website did not provide the information in an interactive, synthetic, and fast readable way and, most importantly, did not capitalize on all the information from past learning courses. We wanted to do better than that, and that's why we created the Learning Station.

On this online tool, you will find learning courses on sustainable urban development with a focus on metropolitan governance, classified according to several criteria - including SDGs -, containing the most relevant information, such as the trainee profile, main objectives, contents, and other materials or resources to get further information.
